Building up from the Baseline

Baseline Constructions Pty Ltd is a newly formed local construction and development company at 400 Burwood Road, Belmore.

Backed by a wealth of experience, the company caters for the needs of the local residents and developers, specialising in works ranging from small domestic extensions to large commercial ventures.

Nicholas Bettar (pictured), the founder of the company and life long resident of the area, has an extensive knowledge of the Bankstown/Canterbury district.

Nicholas has attained a civil engineering degree at the University of Technology, Sydney, and gained valuable experience during his employment at Walker Civil Engineering and Infinity Constructions.

Throughout a project, Baseline Constructions ensures that not only will a project be completed on time and to the client's absolute satisfaction, but they will also exhibit a high level of professional service which will be constantly available to the client.

All projects are supervised by a civil engineer or a competent foreman, who will be personally responsible for every aspect of the job until completion, and all tradesmen are directly answerable to the supervisor in charge for all facets of their respective works.

The constant scrutiny of works completed by tradesmen and site supervisor, will guarantee above average results in all areas of the project and will ensure that the finer details of the work are not neglected.

Nicholas is happy to discuss any facet of the construction process, including design and final council inspection.
